MacArthur Given Pledge from Troops on Bataan

Soldiers Say They Will Keep Up Defense; General Wainwright Ignores Jap Demand for Surrender.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—The war department announced today American-Filipino troops in the Philippines had assured General Douglas MacArthur in a message that they would continue their defense of the islands with the same zeal and courage that they showed under MacArthur's personal command.

A communique said that the message, dispatched to MacArthur in Australia, expressed confidence that under his leadership of the United Nations forces in the Pacific the aggressor would be defeated.

The communique reported that American army bombers which took part in raids Saturday and Sunday from Australia destroyed at least nine enemy planes on the ground and hit and probably shot down two other planes. The attacks had been reported previously.

On Saturday, two heavy bombers attacked the enemy-held airdrome at Rabaul, on the island of New Britain, and caused considerable damage.

Two Planes Shot Down

Two planes of an enemy group which attempted to intercept the raiders were hit and probably shot down.

In a raid Sunday on the airfied at Lae, New Guinea, at least nine enemy planes were destroyed on the ground by the American the war department said.

Meanwhile, the embattled troops of Bataan—the only men who have slapped Nippon's military "face" since Pearl Harbor—dug in deeper today for the "consequences" of their refusal to consider the demand which the Japanese have made for immediate and unconditional surrender.

Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the lean, hard-bitten successor to General MacArthur on Luzon island, refused to dignify the enemy surrender ultimatum with a reply, but there were signs that the demand might precede the long expected Japanese offensive to end major resistance in the Philippines.

"No reply was necessary and none was made," the war department said, announcing the enemy demand for surrender, which fixed noon yesterday as the deadline for the capitulation unless Bataan's defenders were prepared to "suffer the consequences."

However, the same communique yesterday told of intensified patrol and skirmishing activity along the Bataan front—operations which seemed preparatory to developing a big offensive to crush the resistance which has upset the Japanese timetable, pinned down an important number of her troops and left a potentially dangerous Tobruk on the flank of Japan's long communication line to the Dutch Indies.

The pickup in enemy activity on Bataan coincided with a resumption of Japanese artillery action against the island forts which still deny the harbor facilities of Manila bay to the warships and supply vessels of Nippon.

Enemy batteries, the war department's communique yesterday reported, concentrated their fire on forts Frank and Drum. The main fortress, Corregidor, apparently did not figure in the action.

The American forts returned the enemy fire, but during bombardment one Japanese shell caused several casualties, the communique said.

NELSON HITS DOUBLE TIME

War Production Head Says "Privilege" Must Be Suspended.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—Donald M. Nelson told CIO leaders today that labor must suspend for the duration of the war the "privilege" of receiving double pay for Sunday and holiday work.

"We are moving as fast as we can toward seven-day, three-shift operation of our basic war industries," the war production director said. "The principle that a man should regularly have the seventh day off, and should receive over-time pay if an emergency forces him to work on that seventh day, is perfectly sound; but where that seventh day does not fall on a Sunday or holiday I do not think that work on Sundays and holidays, in war time, deserves extra pay."

The leaders of CIO unions from throughout the country were called together by President Philip Murray to organize a campaign against adoption by congress of pending legislation suspending the 40-hour work week and eliminating overtime payments for the duration.

As Nelson talked to the unionists, the senate appeared near a showdown on a strongly-supported movement to force some of the pending legislation out of committee to the floor for debate. It was reported that administration leaders, guided by indications that President Roosevelt was not prepared to recommend enactment of restrictive measures, were battling an incipient rebellion in their own ranks.

Nelson said that as long as he had anything to do with the war production job he would not use the war situation "to whittle down labor's rights and privileges."

"Only one thing interests me—production," he said; "I will not be a part of any attempt to use our need for increased production as a cloak to put something over on labor."

He added that none of labor's essential rights would be taken away "unless the needs of the country for victory demand it."

He asserted that if management and labor were unable "to sink their differences, forget their suspicions and work together" to make the industrial mechanism

FARM OWNERS TO HEAR ARMY MEN

Meeting Scheduled at Edison School Tuesday Night.

Any Marion county farmer whose land is expected to be taken over by the army for military purposes will have an opportunity Tuesday night to learn about the procedure that will be followed.

MAC ARTHUR MAPS PLANS FOR OFFENSIVE

General Has Confidence in Complete Victory.

By The Associated Press

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Australia, March 23—Gen. Douglas MacArthur spent his first Monday on Australian soil today conferring with military leaders and whipping up plans for the defense of this continent and the ultimate counteroffensive.

He spent much of the day with Australian Army Minister Francis M. Forde, Lieut. Gen. V. A. Sturdee, chief of the Australian general staff, and other ranking officers.

After the long discussion, Forde told newspaper correspondents that he was greatly impressed by Gen. MacArthur's ready grasp of the complex situation.

He disclosed this today in publicizing his telegram to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, one of a series he exchanged with the Chinese war leader and Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander in India, both of whom congratulated MacArthur on being chosen United Nations supreme commander in the southwest Pacific.

Wavell's message: "Wish you all good fortune and success in your new command."

MacArthur's answer: "Thanks for your thoughtful message. I will do my best."

Chiang's message: "News of your appointment as commander in chief for Australia and New Zealand fills me with delight. I feel confident that under your leadership a new and epic chapter of military successes and human achievement will be added to the history of our common struggle against treachery and barbarism."

MacArthur's answer: "Deeply appreciate your inspiring message. I have absolute confidence in complete victory."

Cleveland "Model" Plant's Profits Are Target of Quiz

Factory at Peak of Production but Its Income Is Questioned.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—The house naval committee turned the spotlight today on a Cleveland war plant "a year ahead of schedule in production," where all workers are called "associates" and the bonuses for employes are growing fatter.

The firm is Jack & Heintz, Inc., manufacturer of airplane starter motors and other equipment, five of whose officials were subpoenaed to testify on "questions relating to various aspects of the over $58,000,000 of government contracts that the company has been awarded."

The company made about $1,000,000 in profits last year on $10,000,000 worth of business and distributed $650,000 of the profits to its 800 "associates" in the form of bonuses, after putting aside $200,000 to build up reserves.

Coffee Always Free

It is known in Cleveland as the plant where free meals are frequent, coffee is free at all times, a library of 10,000 recordings furnishes music, and everyone gets $37.50 a month in defense stamps, free dental care and other benefits.

Last Christmas every "associate"—from floor sweeper to executive—was given an 18-jewel wrist watch and a huge turkey.

There are 15,000 names on the waiting list at the employment office.

The boss is 52-year-old William S. Jack, who insists that everyone in the plant call him Bill. A former organizer for the ALF International Association of Machinists, he ran three other concerns, making diversified items as

BRITISH SMASH LARGE CONVOY OF AXIS SHIPS

Report Mediterranean Battles as Both Sides Move for Better Positions.

By The Associated Press

A tangled war of planes, submarines and surface craft on intersecting supply lines of the British, Germans and Italians marked springtime maneuvering for strategic positions in the Mediterranean basin.

Broadly, this battle of sealanes complemented the battle of Russia, as well as Libya, for the possibility of a tangent stroke by the axis through southeastern Europe toward Caucasian oil has been evident with the arrival of spring.

The claims in the Mediterranean fighting today were:

British—Two Italian submarines, two supply ships, six large schooners and a troop-laden motorship have been sunk by British submarines in shell and torpedo attacks, some of them within sight of watchers on the coasts of Italy and her Albanian puppet state.

Fire on Subs

Shore batteries on Albania's lower Adriatic coast engaged one of the British submarines while another was made the target of machine gun fire from Salo point, Calabria, in southern Italy, as it sought to pick up survivors. There was no mention of British losses, nor the period covered by the admiralty's report.

Axis—"Repeated" hits were scored by Italian torpedo planes on transports and warships of a Malta-bound British convoy with the battle still going on in the Gulf of Sirte, southeast of Malta.

The Rome high command said that Italian warships overtook the convoy there today, inflicting "further heavy damage." The Italians promised more details later.

The Berlin communique, indicating that German fliers also were engaged in that battle or had started one of their own, said bombers had sunk a 6,000-ton merchant ship out of a British convoy off North Africa and hit two other vessels.

The Italian report said that the British convoy was enroute from the eastern Mediterranean to Malta underlined the importance in which both the British and the axis hold that little island base, 60 miles off the Sicilian coast.

Malta Key To Control

The axis can lay no claim to Mediterranean control so long as Malta remains in British hands, for this bombed spot on earth lies athwart axis communications to Africa and is a potential stepping stone for invasion of Italy.

Both Rome and Berlin reported another pounding of airports, ammunition dumps and other objectives there yesterday.

The RAF, in Africa, striking out more powerfully against the axis footholds in the Mediterranean area, reported Saturday night raids on Berka and Derna in eastern Libya, Hassani in Greece, and Candia, Retimo and Tympakion on the Greek island of Crete.

In the Libyan land fighting, while major movements awaited

THIEF ESCAPES POLICE CHASE

Pursuit Ends In Collision; Car Recovered Before Owner Missed It.

A midnight chase resulted in the recovery of a stolen car by police Saturday night before the auto was reported stolen. The culmination of the chase and the escape of the thief came when the stolen car and the police motorcycle collided.

Patrolman Lewis Cunningham, while on the police motorcycle, spotted the 1938 coach owned by Clyde R. Bell of near Carey, speeding at about 55 miles an hour at 11:23 p. m. on West Center street.

He said he pursued the auto and succeeded in cutting in ahead of it at about 940 Kenton avenue. The front end of the coach and the rear of the police motorcycle were slightly damaged when they sideswiped.

According to a police report, the driver fled from the car on foot before Patrolman Cunningham could give chase.

Patrolman Cunningham had the car towed to a local garage and returned to police headquarters to make his report. At 11:40 police received word from Mr. Bell that his auto was stolen from North Prospect street some time after 8:30 p. m.

MURDER TRIAL OF KENTON MAN BEGUN

Selection of Jurors Still Under Way at Noon.

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., March 23—Selecting of a jury of 12 men and women to hear evidence in the first degree murder trial of Francis Edward "Eddie" Raver, 23-year-old factory employe accused of slaying his wife, Reva Lamb Raver 23, following an early-morning quarrel on Jan. 28, got under way today in Hardin county common pleas court.

At noon today only 13 prospective jurors had been examined and of these four were dismissed. No peremptory challenges had been exercised by either the prosecution or defense and it was indicated that the selection of a jury might require several days.

The thirteenth juror will hear all evidence but will not vote unless one of the other 12 is incapacitated, Judge Arthur D. Tuder said.

Raver pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity" when arraigned Feb. 14. His first degree murder indictment was returned on Jan. 30.

The slain which had Raver held in Lima state hospital for 10 days under observation for plea of insanity, contends that the slaying of Mrs. Raver was premeditated because she planned to seek a divorce. She was shot twice while she prepared her husband's breakfast, and while her brother and baby sister were in another room of the Raver apartment, police investigation revealed.

Prosecutor Rex W. Hanna and Attorney Paul T. Mahon are conducting the prosecution, while Attorneys Roy Warren Roof and Clarence M. Caisna represent the defendant.

ALLIED PILOTS KEEP RAIDING FLYING FIELDS

40 Planes Destroyed but Japs Send Heavy Force Against Port Moresby.

By The Associated Press

Sustaining their counter-offensive on the invasion approaches to Australia, the airmen of the MacArthur command struck today at the Japanese right wing in Dutch Timor after having wrecked some two score of the enemy's planes in operations over the week-end.

Despite the heavy losses, mostly Buffalo-replace fighter planes, the Japanese sent a bomber and fighter force against Port Moresby today in what Australians admitted was the heaviest attack of the war on that city.

The Japanese also attacked Wyndham in western Australia.

An Australian communique said that a Japanese fighter was shot down during a reconnaissance over Dutch Timor, about 300 miles off northwestern Australia, and that Japanese positions at Dili were bombed. The results of the bombing could not be observed.

In their raid on Port Moresby, capital of New Guinea, the Japanese showed they retained a considerable striking power, despite their week-end losses. The raiding force consisted of 19 bombers and three fighters.

Two Waves Attack

The enemy attacked the New Guinea harbor, forward base for defense of the Australian continent, in two waves. After clearing their bomb racks at high altitude the attackers swooped down to 200 feet to take Port Moresby with their guns.

The first report of the raid, relayed by the Australian radio, carried no estimate of damage or casualties.

This show of air power, within easy fighter range of Salamua and Lae, across the jungles and mountainlands north of Port Moresby, followed the severely damaging blow to the air arm of the invaders by the week-end operations of the defense forces.

The counter-offensive may well have thrown the enemy's invasion machine out of kilter, or certainly will if the pace can be sustained. It underlined the spirit for attack in Australia as General Douglas MacArthur mapped his Australian strategy.

The U. S.-Australian bomber team smashed probably 44 Japanese planes, official reports indicated.

Twenty-three Japanese planes were accounted for yesterday and Prime Minister John Curtin hailed the achievement as "one of the most successful operations of the air war in the Pacific."

The greatest weight of bombs yesterday fell on the Japanese base at Lae, New Guinea, while the Australians and their allies confined Japanese forays on the island continent to ineffectual attacks on Darwin and the inland railroad town of Katherine.

The Sunday bag included 10 fighter planes destroyed, three probably destroyed and four damaged—a feat regarded as especially important since fighter planes are hard to replace quickly at such distance from Japan's main bases.

The United air forces lost two planes and had two bomber crewmen wounded yesterday.

Talks With Newsmen

General MacArthur held a frank discussion of military matters with newsmen but it was off the record. However, his frame of mind was exhibited in his reply to a congratulatory telegram from Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

"I have absolute confidence in complete victory," MacArthur wired.

Echoes of the last battle of Java still are heard.

The London Daily Telegraph in a dispatch from Perth, Australia, said an allied submarine reported hitting a Japanese 27,000-ton aircraft carrier with torpedoes on the night of March 3 and quoted the submarine commander as saying he did not know whether she sank but that she "unquestionably" must be out of action a long time.

MacArthur's old command in Bataan dug in for an expected assault from the Japanese following a refusal to dignify with an answer a Japanese ultimatum to surrender by yesterday noon.

Reports from Bataan noted increased Japanese activity.

In the broader realm of political-military strategy the day's principal developments included the arrival of Sir Stafford Cripps at New Delhi on a mission aimed at lining up India for full participation in the British empire war effort, probably through negotiations of some form of independence.

A footnote on Cripps' coming

COOKING IN GLASS

Salmon Scrapple

This wholesome, unusual recipe was developed by a culinary expert as an example of perfect cookery in glass.

Place 2 cups water in the top of double boiler and bring to the boiling point. Stir in ½ cup yellow corn meal which has been first stirred smoothly with ½ cup cold water.

Cook over direct heat until mixture is slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Then place over boiling water, cover and continue cooking 30 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Cool and add one 8 ounce can of salmon, broken in small pieces. Also add salt and pepper to taste and for extra flavor ½ teaspoon ground cloves mixed with ½ teaspoon sage.

Combine thoroughly and mold into a loaf in 1-quart glass loaf pans. Chill in refrigerator.

When ready to serve, cut in thin slices and pan fry in small amount of shortening. When crisp and brown, serve on table in glass skillet used for frying. Garnish with parsley.

Another method of serving would be to place the chilled slices in a glass pie dish, dot with butter and brown under broiler heat setting in the broiling dish.

Asparagus Souffle

Heat 1 can condensed asparagus soup, but do not boil. Add 4 egg yolks, one at a time, mixing thoroughly after each addition. Remove from fire and cool mixture. Beat the 4 egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into buttered glass casserole and bake 1 hour in a slow oven 300 degrees F.)

ORE VESSELS GO OUT SOON

Record Tonnage Is Expected This Year To Meet War Industry Demand.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., March 23—Hibernating freighters of the Great Lakes fleet are getting in trim, fitting them out for the longest and busiest season they have ever faced.

Shipping earlier today predicted iron ore—mark No. 1 war material—would start moving from the Lake Superior region on April 1 this year, the earliest opening of navigation on the upper lakes and two weeks ahead of the usual date.

This was good news to the expanding steel industry which needs increasing shipments of the red mineral for fashioning sheets and plates for weapons and munitions.

Six days before the first ore carrier plows through Superiors ... coal transportation is expected to get under way. Some operators are planning to send coal cargoes to Lake Michigan beginning March 26 and bring back iron stone until rivers above Detroit are free of ice.

86 Million Tons Coming

By the end of the season carriers will have shuttled 86,000,000 gross tons of ore to lower lakes docks, the Lake Superior Iron Ore association estimates. Last year 89,176,000 tons were brought down, establishing a new record.

With the steel industry consuming ore at the rate of 7,158,422 ton in January, stock piles had dwindled to 32,919,000 tons on Feb. 1.

Due to the need for enormous movement of iron ore, railroad shipments are expected to rise this year, too. The Lake Superior Iron Ore association estimates tonnage moved by rail will jump from last year's 1,093,567 to 1,150,000 in 1942.

Increasing ore shipments raise some uncertainty over the availability of vessels for moving coal. It is for this reason Secretary of Interior Ickes urged that coal transportation on the lakes start as soon as possible.

In 1941 coal shipments on the lakes totaled 51,000,000 net tons. The Ore & Coal Exchange said the war so changed the outlook for the coming season that no prediction on tonnage would be made until more commitments are in, but reported the rush for ore undoubtedly would mean a larger diversion to rail.

Scout Weather Conditions

So that no time will be lost in opening navigation, shippers and government agencies are scouting weather conditions in rivers above Detroit, The Soo Canal and Whitefish bay. Lake Michigan is nearly free of ice, and conditions in Lakes Huron and Superior are better than normally expected at this time.

Meanwhile, fires have been lighted in freighters and crews are rapidly completing repairs and fitting-out work.

To handle the heavy lake traffic, 292 American-owned freighters with a gross tonnage of 2,680,000 will be ready at the season's opening. These will be augmented by 21 Canadian ore vessels first used last year. Five new carriers with a total tonnage of 1,000,000 are now building, but probably will enter service late in the season.

The war production board has recommended that 17 vessels which formerly carried automobiles be converted to ore freighters. This would involve extensive alterations however, and it is not definite whether the change-over will be made.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Wide World Financial Editor

WASHINGTON, March 23 — Why must mankind suffer this periodic torrent of war?

It is acknowledged now that war is not caused by simple plots of international bankers or munitions makers.

Analysis goes much deeper. It begins indeed, with the recognition that in each one of us is an innate aggressiveness, whence comes the urge to kill.

How is it that this aggressiveness in the Germans and Japanese has been so readily harnessed by their rulers into a drive for brutal conquest such as the world has not seen since the middle ages?

Psychologists tell us that the tendency to do violence arises from that urge we all have to do something to our environment, to change it so we will like it better. If we are consistently thwarted we turn to violence, as an angry child smashes a toy that will not work.

For generations, Americans directed their combativeness toward taming a wilderness, developing a new continent. Britain, cradle of the modern industrial era, directed hers toward development of a worldwide commerce.

Strongest Human Instinct

The strongest of human instincts is the will to live, but next is the will to self-advancement, or as the German philosophe Nietzsche put it, the "will to power."

If Americans and Englishmen are a commercial people, it is not because most of us are avaricious but because money brings power.

Throughout feudal times power was acquired by war. Among old aristocratic classes of Europe, the army was an honorable calling while commerce was held in contempt. This was particularly true of the Prussian junker class and in Japan, until comparatively recently, war was constantly glorified in the conflicts of feudal clans.

Modern Germany was welded by Bismarck within the memory of men still living, and the revival of present-day Japan upon the world scene was even more recent. It is ironical that these nations were astonishingly successful in industry and world trade, then turned away from peaceful development.

But their success came late, at a time when the capitalistic industrial era had reached a period of extreme complexity, and cycles between prosperity and depression were growing in severity. They could not seem to make it work consistently. Also, their industrialism had not grown up from a full-fledged free enterprise system, but the state had maintained a sort of overlordship.

Easy To Arouse

It was easy for leaders to arouse these peoples, imbued as they were with the tradition of the glory of war, to seek an outlet in schemes of conquest when they found themselves thwarted by economic depression.

There was nothing in the American tradition to make us vulnerable to any proposal of militaristic adventure as an antidote for the ills of 1929-33. Nor did Britain or France seek any such cure for their troubles.

Aiding the militarist leaders of both axis nations, too, was their people's inexperience with democracy.

It is doubtful if the people of either Germany or Japan would have chosen war had they been given a chance to vote on a clear cut issue.

But German democracy was the immature product of chaos and revolution following the last conflict, and no real democracy ever existed in Japan.

The basis of democracy is the arrival—at public decisions after full and reasonable discussion. But man has in his inner emotional makeup not only aggressiveness, but a herd instinct.

Anyone who has ever seen a mob in action knows what it is. Individual standards of moral conduct are swept aside, and an aroused mob of normally quiet, kindly persons may suddenly become homicidal, gripped by a blind mass psychosis.

This herd instinct, say students

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, March 24

THE PRESAGE for a lively, enterprising and successful day is shown in this day's astral chart. There is every possibility of the reaching of important goals in all kinds of ambitions and aspirations, but particularly where the recognition, preferment and good graces of the public are involved. This "happy ending" however depends upon the exercises of complete discretion and much business acumen, since there may be menace of trickery, intrigue and underhand doings to the elevate swept aside. Also shun caustic and bitter words.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year of great opportunity for attaining major objectives, with high aims finding scope and expansion and with the promise of public good opinion as well as substantial cooperation. However there is possibly an undercover situation of fraud, treachery, and sinister attack, which must be averted or sagaciously dealt with by shrewd measures rather than quarrels, bitter and sarcastic speech or writings.

A child born on this day should be talented, industrious, and ambitious, reaching an important position in public places and popularity, but also subject to double-dealing, which may be provoked by its own erratic or unfriendly acts or speech.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

The Kiss

J[illegible] coming back to [illegible] and with him was [illegible]ssa's heart gave a [illegible] leap at sight of [illegible] true, what Dolores [illegible] Randy looked a little [illegible] he tired"

[illegible] the table, he smiled [illegible]lissa and said lightly, "[illegible]me for a dance" Or [illegible]ready tired out with [illegible] Jimmy here?"

[illegible]tired—I'd love to [illegible]od," said Melissa, [illegible]as she rose she caught [illegible]g look on Dolores face [illegible] his arms about [illegible] the music began and [illegible] heart climbed right up [illegible]eat and hung there, [illegible] about her. Randy's [illegible]g against her own—[illegible]was Heaven' This [illegible]—but this was Para-

[illegible]ed down at her and [illegible] Having fun?"

[illegible] answered Me[illegible] and then, curious[illegible]ed Is everything all [illegible] show boat, Randy?

[illegible]—well" worried about

Randy looked down at her, puzzled by her question. "Well, I'm not exactly worried Of course, getting a place like the River Queen established, to where it is making money, paying a return on investments takes a little time. It's hard to convince a business man like Marsten that you can struggle along for weeks, months even, not more than making expenses, breaking even—and that then the place may suddenly begin to pay off"

"Oh," said Melissa in an odd, tight little voice.

"What do you mean—'oh'" demanded Randy, laughing.

"Just 'oh'," answered Melissa, and added lightly, "Jimmy's awfully nice, isn't he? I like him a lot. I rather expect I'll be seeing a whole lot of him later on."

Randy's arms tightened about her ever so little, as though that had unpleasantly startled him. He stared down at her, puzzled, frowning a little. "Now what the devil do you mean by that" he demanded straightly. "First you want to know how things are at the show boat, and then you're going to see a lot of Jimmy Marston The two facts wouldn't be related, would they" I mean you haven't any crazy idea about —well, about vamping Junior in order to make Senior happy, have you"

He had come so close to the truth that Melissa was startled. Because she knew her expression might easily betray her, she tucked her head so that her face was hidden against Randy's shoulder, and the gay little laugh she managed was fairly convincing

"Silly! What a crazy idea! I don't believe that Senior would be pleased if Junior started making a fuss over a show boat girl, do you?" she answered carelessly.

"Jimmy gets pretty much what he wants His parents are crazy about him. But I thought you didn't like the guy"

Hard Job

"That was silly of me, wasn't it?" She had better control of her expression and of her voice now, so she dared to let him see her face upon which she had pinned a gay, brave little smile. 'I did not even know him, but now that I have been with him awhile and see how nice he is—well, I like him a lot!" And that, of course, was true, for Jimmy could be charming when he wanted to be

Randy nodded, and she saw his jaw harden, his mouth tighten a little But just when the music ended and in the general confusion of dancers returning to their tables there was no further chance for private conversation.

When they reached their table Raney said curtly, 'Sorry, girls, but I'm afraid we'll have to be starting back It's getting late'

Dolores and Melissa gathered up their gloves and bags as Jimmy said eagerly, "Look, Ace, you've only got a roadster and there are three of you Why don't you let me drive Melissa back—that is, if Melissa doesn't mind?"

"Mind?" said Melissa gaily, quite aware of Dolores eyes upon her even though she would not meet them. "I think that sounds like grand fun I'd love it"

Randy said grimly, "Then that leaves me nothing to say, does it? Don't be late for the first show, Melissa! Ready, Dolores?" And he turned away as though he had no interest whatever in the matter, his hand beneath Dolores' elbow, guiding her swiftly and surely through the chattering crowd

"This is swell" said Jimmy happily a little later as he tucked Melissa into his expensive, low-slung gray and silver coupe "I haven't been able to get you out of my mind since the other night when I heard you sing"

Melissa laughed, although she had never felt less like laughing "Was I as bad as all that?" she murmured lightly.

"That's shameless fishing for compliments, of course," Jimmy stated firmly as he put the car in motion. 'You know you were'nt bad at all — you were glorious. There's something about your voice that sort of gets a fellow—makes chills run up and down his spine—but I love it"

"That's probably the microphone!" said Melissa wisely "Without it, you can't hear me beyond the first row of tables"

Jimmy said unexpectedly, 'How the dickens did a girl like you ever start singing on a show boat, anyway?"

And so she told him something of the Point of life in the ancient cabin with Gran; of meeting Randy and of her journey to New Orleans when Gran's death left her alone.

"I know you were something extra special," said Jimmy when she had finished, "though I never dreamed you were quite that extra special Wonder why Ace hasn't had you written up in the New Orleans papers There must be a lot of people who never heard of Mississippi lamp-lighters — and none of them would suspect that a scrap of a kid like you could be one. I'll have to tip off a couple of guys I know who work for the local rag."

"But maybe Randy wouldn't like that,' protested Melissa uneasily.

Jimmy said almost grimly "Randy, as you call him, ought to be tickled to death with anything that would improve business on the River Queen"

The Slap

Startled, Melissa asked, 'Is it as bad as all that?'

"What a sucker you are for jumping at conclusions," said Jimmy teasingly. "No business isn't bad at the River Queen. It's improving a little—picking up steadily Everybody connected with the financing is tickled to death. But still, an increase in business due to some well-placed publicity about you, my child, wouldn't be hard to take at all!"

"Oh," said Melissa, and relaxed a little. The sharp relief in her tone made Jimmy look at her a trifle curiously.

"Say, you really care about this career of yours, don't you?" he said, obviously a little surprised

"It's not exactly the career, if you could call what I'm doing a career," answered Melissa quite honestly. "It's just that—well, Randy's been so good to me that I like to know things are going well with him"

Jimmy shot her a straight, level, almost stern glance.

"It wouldn't be, maybe, that you're in love with him?" he asked bluntly.

Melissa set her teeth hard for a moment to steady her voice before she answered as cooly as she could, "Of course not."

"That's good," said Jimmy in frank relief 'Because he's no sort of a guy for a kid like you, my lamb Ace is a lone wolf—he's wary about women. And being the swell guy he is, he'd probably be the first one to tell you that"

The road curved sharply and a fork led off away from the river. Taking the main road which would carry them to the River Queen, Jimmy indicated the narrow fork-road and said, That's our place down there—Enderlie Plantation I'd like to show it to you some day

"I'd like it, too," said Melissa politely.

Jimmy cocked an eyebrow at her and grinned.

"My, my, what nice manners you have, Miss Melissa Marlowe," he teased her lightly "I think that's probably one of the things I like best about you—the rest being you, beautiful hair and your lovely eyes and that pretty little nose of yours and the chin that says you can be a stubborn little mutt when you want to be—and your mouth—your lovely, lovely mouth—Oh, Melissa, my dear—"

He had brought the car to a halt even while he talked and now his arms were about her and he was holding her very close and hard against him and his mouth had found and taken her own.

Melissa was too startled for a moment to struggle, to protest; and before she could regain her scattered faculties a car behind them honked imperiously, demanding right of passage When it came abreast of them Melissa saw, her heart sinking in her breast, that it was Randy's car. Randy could not have helped seeing that Jimmy was kissing her

She caught her breath on a little sob, and before she could control the impulse she raised her hand and slapped Jimmy as hard as she could.

AUTO BUSINESS STRUGGLES ON

Wartime Program Puts Heavy Burden on Ohio Dealers and Salesmen.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Mar. 23 — The $250,000,000 new [illegible] business in Ohio is struggling under blows from the war production rationing program, but the majority of dealers are sticking out their chins, still trying for what business there is and hoping that the government will relieve them of their stocks of cars.

With their new cars tied up and eligible for sale only to a small group of persons whose work is essential to war purposes or public health or safety, the dealers have retrenched rapidly since the first of the year, slashed expenses, laid off many salesmen and dug in to weather the [illegible]

Only 8,261 new passenger automobiles were allotted for sale in Ohio in March. April and May Last year there were 256,034 new cars registered in the state In 1940 there were 233,439 They averaged slightly under $1,000 each in price.

Fewer Salesmen Register

The salesmen's [illegible] also indicates what has happened With all automobile salesmen required to be licensed annually by April 1, only 1,392 had applied to the bureau of motor vehicles through last Thursday compared with 5,900 on the corresponding day a year ago, registrar Cyrus W Wallace reported

The total licensed last year was 8,500; this year's will be a mere 2,000, Wallace predicted

Many salesmen have shifted to insurance and other work for which they are fitted and are doing well, said John Barton, executive secretary of the Columbus Automobile Trade Association, Inc. Real estate is a good field for men who can't deliver the cars they could sell, Barton added

Barton reported that many dealers hoped for liberalization of rationing regulations to permit them to move more cars now "frozen" in salesrooms and storage buildings One large manufacturer, General Motors has offered to take new cars off their dealers' hands and permit them to liquidate their heavy investments.

Turn to Other Articles

Bicycles, electric appliances and other commodities are displayed in many salesrooms formerly devoted exclusively to automobiles; some dealers' repair shops have been expanded in hopes of making up part of the loss in sales revenues.

Barton and Walt Hamer, secretary of the Ohio Auto Dealers association, said some garage owners hoped to become sub-contractors on war production work although shortage of tools barred many from such work immediately.

Another possibility of relief is a bill pending in congress to require the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to buy dealers' unsold new automobiles Another pending measure would exempt dealers in rationed goods from lease or rental agreements upon surrender of property

Meanwhile, dealers generally are asking landlords to cancel leases or reduce rentals, with some success, they reported

Pacific War of Attrition

GEN MacARTHUR's declaration about relief of the Philippines being a primary purpose of his campaign based on Australia is a terse description of his military problem.

To hold Australia, Gen. MacArthur must have an uninterrupted supply of war material from the United States—uninterrupted and enormous. The material must be shipped from the United States; it is approximately 7,500 miles from San Francisco to Sydney, closest Australian port. From Yokohama to Sydney is slightly more than 5,000 miles, the same distance as that from Honolulu to Sydney. This must be done to hold Australia.

To make Australia the spring board for a counter-campaign to drive the Japanese will require much more. The United States fleet will have to gain control of the seas in the Netherlands East Indies. United States aviation will have to overcome the Japanese advantage that helped make the Japanese thrust toward Australia successful. Only after the Japanese had been placed on the defensive in the southwest Pacific would relief of the United States and Filipino army in the Philippines begin to materialize.

This is what observers meant before the defeats at Singapore and Java when they said the loss of these vital points would mean a long, costly and bloody war. The United Nations can regain what has been lost, but the most momentous fact of their campaign at the moment is their tremendous disadvantage. There is nothing immediatey to be expected. Sudden, brilliant victories are out of the question. They have undertaken a long war of attrition, to offset Japan's early successes. All hope of a short war ending in Japan's defeat was destroyed by failure to be prepared for what now, oddly enough, plainly was bound to happen.

$1 a Year But No Magic

ROBERT R. GUTHRIE, center of a war production board personnel tempest, is latest to point out that the United States buys no magic for $1 a year. The businessmen and experts who come to Washington on nominal pay to work for the government are pretty much the same as they were before they left home; i.e., they are strongly inclined to look out for themselves and their interests.

This will tickle the jobholders who resent the presence of the interlopers. They knew all the time that some of the strange fish washed up by the emergency didn't belong in the New Deal sea; that they couldn't be trusted; that they were continuing to be different from politicians. As for the rest of the citizenry, it is singularly unsurprised.

It learned long ago to assume that the job of organizing government consisted in taking a great many persons with divergently selfish interests and playing them off against one another to the mutual advantage of the public. The citizenry naturally assumes that the $1 a year men are no exception. There simply isn't anything surprising in recurrent disclosures that some of the $1 a year men are not in a mood to be any more farsighted and unselfish than some of the politicians who asked them to come to Washington.

No Panacea

OFFICIAL administrative pressure is being built up against labor law revision; Donald M. Nelson, war production board chairman, has added his objections to those of President Roosevelt, Lieut. Gen. Knudsen and other lesser functionaries who have been called on for an opinion.

Revision would not be a panacea for the situation that is aggravating the critics of administrative labor policy. There is no panacea. Perhaps revision wouldn't even make the situation less aggravating. If organized labor leaders decided to make an issue of it, they have the power to make the situation infinitely worse than it is now.

And what is the situation? Insofar as it can be described briefly, it is the seeming assumption on the part of administrative officials that organized labor can do no wrong. There has been a loss of balance in official attitudes—a loss that has encouraged minor and major labor leaders to take advantage of a pro-labor policy and has stimulated critics of the labor leaders to adopt a bitter-end attitude that bodes no good for anyone.

It is the critics snapping at the heels of congressmen who have brought about the threat of labor law revision. Obviously, nothing is settled by merely taking the attitude that nothing should be done lest labor leaders become disgruntled. That doesn't settle the question of why a great many Americans have reached a point in their thinking where they are tired of pussyfooting around the sensibilities of labor leaders. It is at this point that the Roosevelt administration needs to apply some of its ingenuity, not all at the point of stopping labor law revision because someone might get peeved.

The United States imported more than 30 million barrels of petroleum from Venezuela in 1940.

News Behind the News

Jap Propagandists Attack Russia; Possible Signal for New War Seen.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 23.—All during this war, the Jap radio propagandists have really worried the Russians sitting on their back porch in Asia. Last week, they opened up on the Reds, sniffing them around verbally every hour on the hour for no apparent new reason. In the normal course of axis antics, this means the Reds are scheduled for Jap attention next.

An invasion on the Amur river line to cut off Vladivostok has long been in the Jap military cards. Whether it is to be timed with a Hitler spring offensive on the West Russian front is now the live question. Also some sea action against Pacific shipping into Vladivostok might be taken.

At least, the Jap radio attention to the Commies has sounded an alert here concerning coming events in the northwestern Pacific.

Draft Outlook

Confusing conflicts have occurred in published official advice about your chances in the draft. As it stands on the record, government draft policy seems muddled, although actually it is not.

War Secretary Stimson, for instance, said something about taking 10 of the latest registrants for every 1 from the previous lists, but obviously did not mean this. No one seems to know what he did mean. That arithmetic does not fit into any known draft calculations.

Immediate plan is to raise an army of 3,600,000 by the end of this year. For the past few months the army has been stabilized at about 1,900,000. So the government intends to call 1,900,000 more men in the next nine months.

Half of these are to be taken from the old registration lists, half from the new one for which the lottery was held last week.

The first 950,000, who are to come from the old lists, will be chosen through reclassifications in that list. The reclassification will probably result in calling all from 1-A down to 3-A (married but with wife working.) Also the men who became 21 last year are likely to go before the middle of the year.

Those Drawn Last Week

The second 950,000 will be obtained from those who were drawn last Wednesday. The 20-21 year olds will certainly go. Frankly, the army does not want the older men very much (from 37 to 44) but will call them up mainly to replace soldiers doing desk work, and for officer training. If there is a shortage of officers, the army will, for instance, ask that 50,000 (a guessed figure) be called up and sent to training camp. If you are 37 to 44 the chance against you being called this year is about 10 to 1.

What will be done next year and thereafter depends much on what happens this spring in Russia and elsewhere. If the army is to be raised to 5,000,000 or 10,000,000 then nearly all the ablebodied available non-defense workers will be eventually picked from the 26,000,000 persons who have registered this far (17,000,000 originally and 9,000,000 additional last week.)

Exemptions

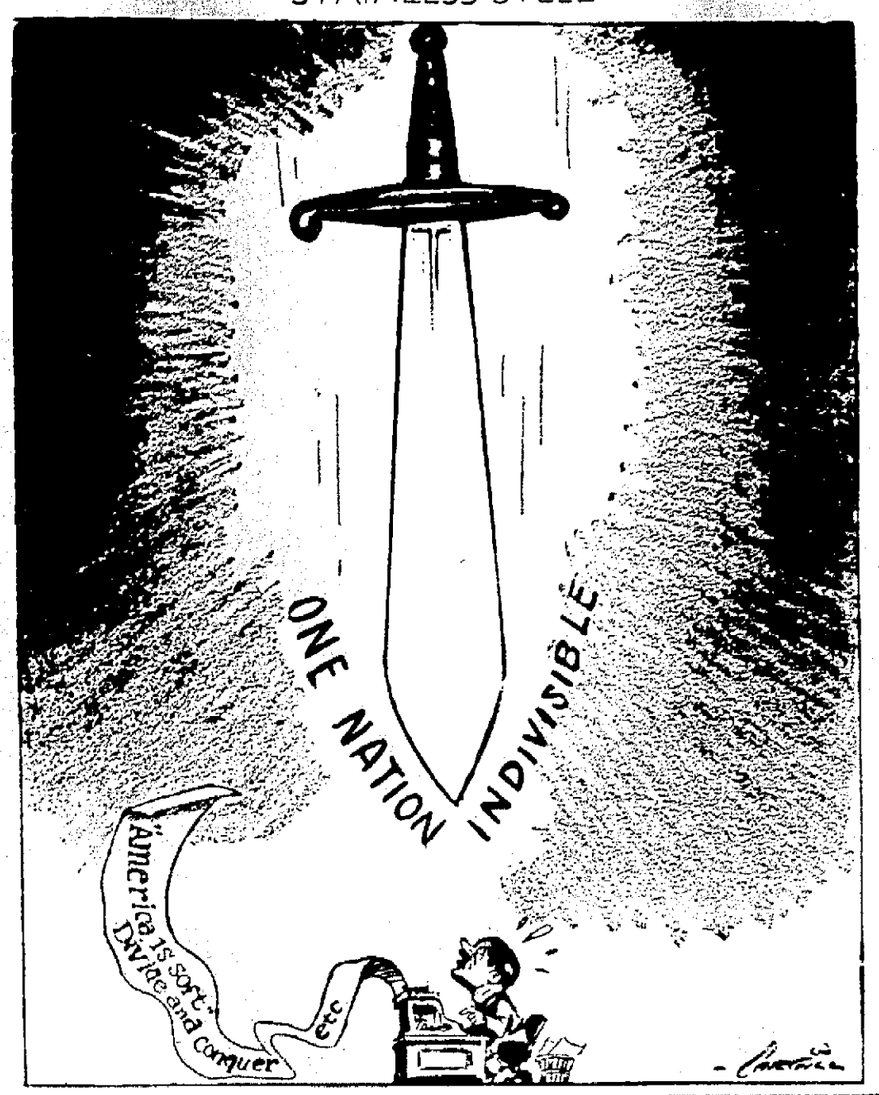
Talk about labor leaders, radio-movie actors and newspapermen being exempt, does not mean much except for labor leaders. It is all up to your local draft board, and no doubt the boards will differ widely in their rulings on individual cases.

Draft General Hershey wrote a letter to all state draft directors urging exemption of labor leaders (as well as management liaison men with labor) in order to keep "harmonious relations" on the production front. That was not an order, but it will be binding. As for radio-movie actors, Hershey merely wrote a letter to a California director saying Lowell Mellett, the administration movie director, considered the industry as a war essential. This is not apt to be binding. Where the news-men got into this select group, nobody knows. Hershey said something about it being a war essential at a press conference, and of course the press as a whole, is essential. Newspapers cannot be abandoned. But each draft board will decide for itself whether particular individuals in the industry are indispensible to it.

45-64 Group

As for the new 45 to 64 draft, no one seems to know anything for sure. Mr. Roosevelt said General Hershey ought to know, and the general said he did not. A jurisdictional dispute as to who is to handle this draft of older men for industry (not for the army) has long been going on between labor adviser Hillman, social securist Paul McNutt and Labor Secretary Perkins. They have been getting together, then falling apart on the matter for some time, and exact information apparently must wait until they have been coordinated or suppressed.

"STAINLESS STEEL"



U. S. Eyes Australia

By National Geographic Society.

THOUSANDS of American families that never thought of Australia before, except as a remote continent on the other side of the world, are interested in it now as the home of a large American expeditionary force. Many of the features of the southern hemisphere's great island continent are suddenly significant as United States fighting men prepare to check Japan's aggression from Australia as a fighting base.

Australia is approximately the size of continental United States. Yet, within its nearly 3,000,000 square miles of land, only about 7,000,000 people live, compared with more than 130,000,000 in the United States. Most Australians, moreover, live in a narrow coastal belt, nearly half of them, in half a dozen large towns, led by Sydney with more than a million and a quarter inhabitants, and Melbourne, with a little more than a million.

Since both Sydney and Melbourne lie on the southeast coast of Australia, many hundreds of miles still separate them from the active theater of war. To Melbourne from the island of New Guinea, where the Japanese have gained footholds, is a matter of some 2,000 air miles. Sydney, directly south of the southeast tip of this Netherlands-Australian possession, is about 1,700 miles away. Canberra, the country's 15 year old, made to order capital, lies about 100 miles southwest of Sydney, between that port and Melbourne.

Island territories of the now overrun Netherlands Indies lie within a few hundred miles of the coast of north central Australia. Any drive in this direction, by way of the "out-back" base of Port Darwin, would lead first through Australia's least settled regions. Population density is lightest in the centralized northern territory, with an average of only about one person to each 100 square miles of land. In the lonely reaches of western Australia some 45 persons are counted for each 100 square miles, while Queensland, in the northeast, has 141 people for a similar unit. In sharp contrast with these figures, the southeastern Victoria state contains more than two thousand inhabitants for every 100 square miles.

Australia's generally sparse settlement is due to two main factors, its great distance from European sources of immigration and the restrictive laws passed there against importation of nonwhite peoples from the nearer continents and Pacific islands. It is estimated that more than 99 per cent of the population is European, largely of British extraction. There is a small group of aboriginal blacks, between 50 and 60 thousand, but they are decreasing in numbers.

THE commonwealth of Australia is a self governing nation sharing allegiance along with the other British dominions, to the British king. It comprises the six colonies, now called "Original States," of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Aus-

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, March 23, 1932.

Will Rogers in his daily dispatch reported on a new plan for creating employment that had been adopted in some sections of New York City. He wrote, "Has your town or city investigated this great scheme called 'blockaid' that they have in New York City? Each person with a job that lives in that block is asked to contribute a dime, quarter or not more than a dollar per week. Now your block is so organized that each block helps itself."

It was announced that Earl N. Hale, vice president of the Marion Rotary club and Wendell Wiant, secretary, would represent the club at the district Rotary convention in Youngstown, April 14-15.

Alden J. Moon, 48, died at his home on North Main street.

Committees for the spring dance of Gamma Mu chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority on April 2 were named by Miss Martha Smallwood, president.

Mrs. Parker Kerr was hostess to the Happie Tyme club at her home on Uncapher avenue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, March 23, 1922.

Debate over the proposed payment of a soldiers' bonus was nearing a close in the national house of representatives.

A Berlin dispatch reported that Germany might refuse to attend the international economic conference at Genoa as a result of severe indemnity conditions imposed upon the country by the inter-allied reparations commission. Indignation among the Germans was centered against Premier Poincare, who was characterized as "Germany's hangman." The Lokal Anzeiger stated, "Premier Poincare knows that he is confronting Germany with obligations that can not be fulfilled."

It was announced that the first motor truck for the American Railway Express Co. had been delivered in Marion and would be placed in use soon.

The Fite Memorial Baptist basketball team defeated the Baptist Grays of Richwood on the Richwood floor, 24-22. Fite Memorial players were Boulton, Gray, A. Smith, Weaver and E. Smith, while playing for Richwood were Shoup, Gast, Malleson, Jones and Swartout.

The feature picture at the Marion theater was "Cappy Ricks," starring Thomas Meighan and at the Grand there was a Mack Sennett comedy, "A Small Town Idol" starring Ben Turpin, Marie Prevost, Charlie Murray and Phyllis Haver.

There's an Old India—and a New

By RAY PEACOCK
Wide World Feature Writer

INDIA'S summer, deadly as Russia's winter, has started. As a result, the axis may sidestep another battle with the weather and not attempt invasion until fall.

For there is more truth than satire in the colonial song which contends that only "mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the noonday sun." When it gets hot in India, it gets hot.

The government moves from Delhi on the Punjab plain to Simla in the cool Himalayas. From March to October, temperatures on the plain are married to three figures and the offspring is a state of fatigue called "Punjab head."

Also contributing to weather difficulties are the monsoons, which begin in June and run through October. While the rainfall is extremely uneven because of influences of mountain and ocean, in some areas it comes down in buckets—500 inches a year. In others, none.

Triangle-Shaped

Triangle-shaped India has an area, omitting Burma and Aden, of 1,575,107 square miles. Sides of the triangle are almost evenly 1,900 miles. By reason of the isolating mountains of the north, it is more continent than country, and as such is divided into three well-defined areas.

The Himalayas, loftiest mountain ranges in the world, form the north. In the center are the wide plains watered by mountain-born rivers, and here are the richest and most densely populated provinces. In the south, defined by the Vindhya mountains, are the tablelands of the Indian peninsula.

Once a definite geographical and social barrier between northern and southern India, the Vindhyas have been crossed by highways and railroads.

Despite its general backwardness, India has some 43,000 miles of railways, exceeding every country except the United States. The railways, with a staff of 800,000, are the largest employers of labor.

Although it has 5,000 miles of coastline, India never has been sea-minded. Like the United States, India obtains most of its sailors from the interior, where the men are stronger and heavier. But the country is airminded, and has many flying clubs which have provided pilots for six native air transport companies. Since the war, the club pilots have been the backbone of the Indian air force.

Highways, which were little more than trails until about 1853, began to expand with the railroads, feeding and supplementing them. Today there are some 59,000 miles of bridged and hard-surfaced highways worthy of the name. River transportation always has been important, particularly on the Indus, Ganges and Brahmaputra in the north, and Godavari, Kistna and several others in the south.

Transportation Problem

If India must become the feeder for embattled allied forces in Burma and China, the problem of transportation — once outside India itself—will be difficult if not insurmountable.

With the Burma road closed, one later alternate may be the Assam road from Sadiya, in the extreme right angle of the Indian triangle just below Tibet, to Chungking.

Two-thirds of the road still is on paper, and at the rate work has progressed, the Assam road will not be completed before 1946. Three hundred bloody miles have taken two years and 7,000 lives to complete. The route is more twisted and tortuous than the Burma road and the hardest part remains to be built. Stone cutters by the hundreds have fallen from mountainsides while trying to chip out a foothold.

For the past four years Russia has sent a trickle of supplies into China over the old Marco Polo silk route, or the so-called Red Route. But time is too important to the allies, and Calcutta is only eight hours by air from Chungking. Transport planes almost certainly will be employed extensively, and the sea lanes from India to Burma will have to be kept open.

Or else.

Broadway Flash

Jack, the Hater, Sees Chanc Make Killing in Capital wit Sad Sam and His Misery.

By DAMON RUNYON

COMMUNIQUE from the Broadway Last night this guy Jack the Hater looking me up again in Lindy's restaura naturally I am glad to see him as I am h good reports of him from Washington, where Jack is now in business as a public and gets nice fees for hating people fron who dast not do their own hating out loud

So I give him a big how-are-you, al of course I do not really care how he l Jack sits down with me and asks me knows where he can locate a guy by the of Sad Sam, who is a horse player by and this question surprises me no little body ever before wished to locate Sad except maybe to know what places to so they will miss seeing him.

This Sad Sam is really a very gloomy acter and to tell you the truth if I ha choice between sitting up all night wit Sam or a corpse I will choose the corpse is sure to be more cheerful. So I tell the Hater that I not only do not know to find Sad Sam but that I hope I neve out and then I ask him what he wants Sad Sam anyway and Jack says to m this: "Well," he says, "I am doing so with my public hate business that I am ing of putting in a branch and Sad Sam the guy for me. I am thinking of put morning line on misery."

"OH," I says, "you mean a morning li we get on the horses every morning this one will be on sorrowful stuff?"

"Yes," Jack the Hater says. "That idea."

"Well," I say, "you are looking fo right guy, I never see Sad Sam but wi says 'Who do you think dies just no 'Who do you suppose has measles or wife runs away from him, or who falls and breaks a leg.' Yes, I say, Sad Sam is your guy to get you up the morning l misery, but Jack I say is there a mark such matters in Washington."

"Plenty," Jack says. "I have 50 clie mind right now. I am doing some public for some of them and they are good pay. work up a fine trade in the morning l misery with Sad Sam. I will give him the sary information on the misery and all h have to do it go around to the clients eve and recite it to them."

"Why, Jack," I say, "do you mean me they will be interested in misery s Sad Sam brings around? Will they be ested in guys dying and having disease an broads running away from them?"

"Well," Jack says, "of course he wil to be a little less local and deal in bigger such as the way the war is going, un happens to be going good, and who is c crossing who in administration circles, bu of small talk such as Sad Sam is accusto dealing will not hurt, however," Jack s will soon broaden him out."

"HOW do you get this idea, Jack?" "Well," he says, "I notice soon af riving in Washington that many guys are around giving out a morning line on misc that many citizens are glad to listen t but they generally only have one or two and no system of distribution. They just and give their line to anybody that comes

"So," Jack says, "I figure that if I b an expect like Sad Sam and load him u plenty of misery every day and give regular route I cannot miss. I am sure become an important branch of my b because so many guys in Washington know all the misery that is going on."

"Jack," I say, "why not put in another and hire us to give your clients the line o

"No," Jack the Hater says, "my clie Washington, D. C., do not wish to he joy."

Among the first things the Yanks spotted on arrival in Australia were familiar hamburger stands and coffee shops, and restaurants with unrationed quantities of food.

The country is largely agricultural with a surplus of food. The troops face little chance of restricted rations.

Like the English and Americans, the Australians are a meat-eating people and the boys have all the steaks and chops they want—and can pay for.

Beer Served Warm

For those who prefer a drink with a collar or a head, the supply is plentiful, the bars spacious. Australian beer is a bit heavier than American brews and usually served warm. Those who know say they are excellent.

No hard liquors are sold legally after 6 p. m., although they can be bought through underground channels. In the winter season—which is our summer—rum is the preferred drink.

The American lads are lisely to make their hosts eyes pop with amazement over their capacity for beer. The records show the average American consumes almost twice as much beer as the average Australian.

WINTER WHEAT OUTLOOK GOOD

Acreage Smaller but Yield Is Expected To Partially Offset Loss.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 23—The United States' new winter wheat crop is greening up and entering the spring growth period in probably the best shape in years, except in a few localities, according to latest grain trade reports today.

Acreage is much smaller than normal, due to restrictions on planting because of the record breaking carryover of old wheat, but the excellent start indicates, crop experts here said, this may partially be offset by yield.

A large volunteer acreage, estimated possibly as big as 3,000,000 acres, exceeding allotments of farmers, is flourishing. Although some has already been plowed up, much will be allowed to mature under an amended agricultural adjustment administration ruling that will not penalize farmers for exceeding allotments in this respect, provided certain restrictions on marketing are met.

Moisture conditions in some localities are the best in years, particularly in parts of the southwest that once comprised the wheat belt's famous dust bowl.

Restrained by the government allotments, farmers seeded only 39,318,000 acres to winter wheat last fall compared with 45,663,000 a year earlier. The official preliminary forecast last December, however, suggested production would total 630,913,000 bushels, or only about 40,000,000 less than the 1941 crop, because conditions of the crop at that time was 87 percent of normal, or unusually good.

Since then, grain men believe, there has been little, if any, deterioration, while winter kill and abandonment are expected to be subnormal.

26 Against the Axis: 18

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC — Hispaniola was the name Christopher Columbus gave to the West Indies island, two-thirds of which is occupied by the Dominican Republic. This small country (population about 1,620,000) claims many firsts in American history: Sighted and settled on Columbus' first voyage; site of the first Mass celebrated in the Western Hemisphere; site of the oldest Christian city in the New World (Santo Domingo, now Ciudad Trujillo, founded Aug. 4, 1496); the oldest (1512) cathedral in America, Cathedral of Santo Domingo, and the mortal remains of Columbus, reportedly entombed in the cathedral. The republic also was one of the first American countries to offer refuge to Europe's exiles, taking in hundreds of Spanish Republicans in 1939 after Franco's successful revolution. Generalissimo Doctor Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, benefactor (father) of his country, as supreme commander of the republic's land, sea and air forces, is the strong man of the nation. Dr. M. J. Troncoso de la Concha is the present president. The republic's valuable mineral deposits are undeveloped but its important agricultural exports are sugar, bananas, tobacco, coffee, rice, cocoa. Across the 193-mile border lies Haiti, partner in a short, sharp boundary dispute a few years ago. Spanish is the national language and most of the population traces back to Spain from whom the republic won her independence in 1844. Lying between Cuba and Puerto Rico, the Dominion Republic is part of the island barrier protecting the Panama Canal from Atlantic marauders, and Generalissimo Trujillo, former president and candidate at the coming presidential election, fortunately is one of the staunchest supporters of Pan-Americanism and of the United States in the hemisphere.

There's nothing involved or complicated about it; that's one thing everybody likes. You just tell us about how you'd like to meet the obligation, and we arrange it that way.

Nothing could be easier, or simpler. It's a Schaffner-Denzer policy that everyone approves.

OHIO FLOOD CONTROL ESTIMATE REPORTED

Delaware, Dillon Reservoirs Omitted by Engineers.

The Delaware and Dillon reservoirs are allowed nothing in the budget for flood control in Ohio during the fiscal year 1943, beginning next July, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington in which army engineers estimated today that more than $18,000,000 could be spent profitably for flood control in Ohio.

The estimated sum is more than half the amount approved by the house for inclusion in the war department civil functions appropriation which followed substantially the recommendations of the engineers who prepared their program in the light of war economy.

In their annual report the engineers estimated that an $18,518,000 expenditure in the state would be justified economically under normal conditions. Their budget as approved by the house, however, recommended $7,705,000.

This would be spent for local works at Portsmouth, Cincinnati and Massillon and for the Berlin and Muskingum reservoirs during the fiscal year.

Wilson, who was extricated from the wreckage by a passing motorist, was taken to University hospital in Columbus after receiving first aid treatment in Worthington.

Advice to Selectees with Cars To Sell

Elmer E. Smith, clerk of courts, today urged all draft registrants who own cars and who expect to be called soon to get their titles transferred before they leave. He said if men who are going to leave will cooperate in this matter, much confusion and delay will be avoided.

Mr. Smith said several cases have come up recently in which it was necessary to send papers to camp to secure power of attorney. In one instance, he said, the soldier had been sent out of the country and it was impossible to make the proper transfer.

Her marriage to William Morris took place at Harpster on March 29, 1909. Mr. Morris died near Sumersville on Dec. 9, 1931.

LEADER IN CHURCH PLAN HERE TODAY

Arranging for Regional Meeting on April 16.

Dr. W. H. Thompson of Columbus, field representative of the Ohio Council of Churches and Religious Education, was in Marion today in the interest of the United Christian Education Advance which will start with a regional meeting April 16 at First Methodist church in Findlay.

The regional meeting will be the first of a series of 135 preliminary conferences in which Protestant churches of America will launch a nationwide "campaign to wipe out religious ignorance."

Dr. Thompson said he would contact the head of the Marion County Ministerial association among others he expected to see here today.

The meeting in Findlay, for Marion and nearby counties, will be one of four in Ohio between April 15-18. Dayton, Akron and Cambridge also have been designated for regional gatherings.

The purpose of the United Christian Advance in Ohio, as summarized by Dr. Thompson, is "to reach the last child in the last community" with the message of the church. He pointed out that there are 600,000 children and young people in Ohio who have no contact with the church.

Plans for the regional conference, as outlined by Dr. Thompson, call for an attendance of five or six persons from each local church in the area. It is suggested that each church's delegation should be chosen from among the pastor, the Sunday school superintendent, the president of the Women's society, leaders of young people's and children's work, heads of the brotherhoods or other laymen's groups and selected Sunday school teachers.

The tentative program for the Findlay meeting will be announced later.

GOVERNMENT BEGINS OPERATION OF ROAD

President Orders T., P. and W. Taken Over by U. S.

By The Associated Press

PEORIA, Ill., March 23 — The federal government held under its jurisdiction today the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad, one of the nation's short but vital links of transportation and the first line taken over by the government since the post-war period 22 years ago.

Formal seizure of the road was made yesterday when government representatives took over active management of the line, which will remain under federal rule until final settlement of a labor dispute.

They acted on President Roosevelt's executive order which was issued Saturday after George P. McNear Jr., president of the 239-mile line, rejected demands to arbitrate an 85-day-old strike. President Roosevelt's action was the first seizure of the railroad since the nation entered the war. (Nine months after the first World war President Wilson placed all railroads and steamship lines under government control. It was not until early in 1920 that congress acted to have the roads returned to the private corporations which owned them.)

After J. W. Barriger, associate director of the office of defense transportation and named federal manager of the road, presented Mr. Roosevelt's seizure order to McNear, he announced the government would operate the line "in such a manner . . . as may be necessary for the successful prosecution of the war."

Barriger said that although McNear would remain as president he would "be on the sidelines until such a time as the conditions in President Roosevelt's orders have been fulfilled." He added the road's control would be turned over to McNear "when the labor dispute is settled to the satisfaction of all parties."

SEA BATTLES

the hotter but better weather just ahead, the British Eighth army and allied forces struck deep into the axis lines in a forceful reconnaissance by tanks, armored cars, infantry and artillery.

The air fields at Tmimi and Martuba were shelled, several axis strong points were overrun and prisoners and guns were captured before the raiders withdrew.

A Reuters dispatch to London from Havana said that British planes had arrived in Cuba to join United States air patrols against the U-boats. Authoritative London quarters declined comment on the report.

As for the springtime war in Russia, the German high command continued its fleeting references to German offensive action—nothing specific, but it was a change from the generally defensive tone of recent weeks.

The communique told of further Russian attacks on the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea as well as in the Donets basin, saying that they had collapsed under the bitter German resistance. In a central front sector, the Germans claimed to have wiped out several Russian strong points.

The high command said the Red army had suffered losses of "several thousand dead and a number of prisoners" in the past two days.

The Russians reported 12,000 German officers and men were killed on the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow between March 11 and 21 and much war materiel was captured or destroyed.

They also said the German 16th army trapped at Staraya Russa was dwindling away despite its fierce resistance and that a major German-Rumania counter-attack in the southwest had been smashed.

With the good fighting weather of summer in the offing, it was a matter of speculation when the first attack in a new battle of Libya would come and who would strike.

The British and the axis face each other across a 50-mile no man's land. The Italians are known to have dispatched at least part of a fresh armored division across the Mediterranean.

Final Personal Tax Date Drawing Near

Bicyclist Injured in Traffic Accident

A bicyclist suffered minor injury in one of two traffic accidents reported to city police and one traffic accident reported to state highway patrolmen over the week-end. The other accidents involved minor damage to the autos involved.

William Cochran, 12, suffered slight injury to his left knee when a bicycle he was operating collided with a 1941 sedan driven by Betty Marie Neff, 17, of near Marion Saturday afternoon at Main and Center streets. According to police, the bicyclist was trapped at the intersection when the traffic signal changed.

Coaches operated by Homer Charles Neff, 38, of 357 Mt. Vernon avenue and Arthur Harold Cripple, 22, of 225 North Main street collided Saturday night at Leader and Silver streets.

Marion state highway patrolmen said cars driven by Robert Spangler, 34, of Galion and John Mead, 18, of Kenton collided about 9 last night on Route 30S east of Marion.

Ward's present assignment is unknown. However, members of the family believe that he is "somewhere in the Pacific, possibly at present in Australian waters." Thrilled by colorful reports of navy life described by Tex, Ward enlisted here a little over a year and a half ago, just three months after Tex had entered the service.

In addition to their sons by previous marriages they are parents of a daughter, Patsy, who will soon be three years old. She has the unusual distinction of having four half-brothers in the service.

"SQUARING" AWAY AT ADOLF

Released by the office of emergency management in Washington, this "scoreboard" is typical of those suggested by the war production board for use in plants engaged in war work. Squares are interchanged and their changing pattern keeps pace with the factory's progress toward its goal. Come on, all, let's block out Adolf Hitler and his gang!

J. Mrs. O. C. Young read the letter from Mr. Burnett and Mrs. Tabor Adams read the letter from Peterson.

PLANT

Diesel engines and electric razors, before the formation of Jack & Heintz in 1940, with himself, his son Russell and Ralph Heintz, vice president in charge of engineering, as the three stockholders. All the workers belong to the union.

"We're a year ahead of schedule in production," Jack recently told an interviewer. "We're working two 12-hour shifts a day—by the men's own choice, but I'll lay you any kind of bet we have 20 per cent greater efficiency than any other plant in the country."

Jack asserts that profits of 10 to 20 per cent are not out of line, and that if the company wants to distribute 6 to 8 per cent among the employes, "that's our business and nobody else's."

No Time Clocks

As for the cost to the government, he says his company has reduced prices 20 per cent since it become a government supplier.

He cites as one reason why war production records are being broken the fact there are no time clocks.

"Most of the associates get to work a half hour early," he explained. "If a man is only one minute late he knows he's going to get the 'wolf call'—which means the other associates hoot at him all the way down the line. That's more effective than any time clock."

He says "I hate to think what other manufacturers are going to call us after we pay bonuses this year," because the associates will get most of the mounting profits. But other industries, says Jack, could boost production "and still pay dividends" if they would eradicate employes' fear of losing their jobs, for when fear is removed, "production goes up faster than any other way."

Toland Says Firm Made 100 Per Cent Profit

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23 — Edmund Toland, counsel for the house naval affairs investigating committee, declared today that "with the willful dissipation of government money on defense contracts, the excess profits tax is not the complete answer" to the question of war profits.

Toland's statement to the investigating committee was preliminary to his testimony regarding expenditures made by Jack and Heintz of Bedford, Ohio, manufacturers of airplane motor starters for the army and navy.

Toland said the present Jack and Heintz firm was formed in Bedford in 1940, and that a navy order filled by the firm showed a profit of 100 per cent.

"Exorbitant salaries were paid to officials, three of whom got a total of $145,000 last year," he asserted.

He told the committee that the firm also spent large sums of money on free lunches, banquets and entertainment for employes, and that one former army air officer was given a bonus of $11,000 after he had been with the firm only six weeks.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 23—The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and the Northwestern Ohio Natural Gas Co. asked the Ohio public utilities commission today for permission to consolidate on the grounds that both are subsidiaries of Columbia Gas and Electric Corp. and that operation under one management would increase efficiency and afford better service to consumers.

Dr. S. M. Inguire gave the welcome, after which Eunice Elsey offered prayer and read the Scripture lesson. A devotional talk, "These Twelve," by William Buettin, preceded the program of music.

The concert was sponsored by the Youth Fellowship of the church and was preceded by a supper for the visitors, with the Fellowship as host.

The group stayed overnight in homes of Epworth members and left this morning for a program tonight at Waynesville. An eight-day tour will take the group to Washington, D. C.

MacARTHURS PICTURED AFTER ARRIVAL IN MELBOURNE

Welcomed by deafening cheers of an admiring crowd, General Douglas MacArthur, his wife and young son, Arthur, arrive in Melbourne on the express from Adelaide. This picture, radioed from Melbourne to London and from London to New York, is the first photo of the MacArthurs in Australia to reach the United States.

Lessons of Bataan Stand, MacArthur in Good Stead

Defense of Australia To Test Experience Gained in Philippines and France.

(This appraisal of Douglas MacArthur's generalship in terms of the problems he faces in Australia—written on Wide World's veteran war analyst, Kirke L. Simpson—concludes a four-part series of articles on the American high commander of United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific.)

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Wide World War Analyst

WASHINGTON, March 23 — There is a grim portent for the axis fellowship of conquest in the fact that General Douglas MacArthur, first field soldier of the American army in this war as he was close to being in the first World war, has taken over supreme command of the United Nation' defensive-offensive front on the eastern flank of the far Pacific battle area.

Come where or when it may, a Japanese attempt to invade Australia will try conclusions not only with MacArthur of Bataan—rankling name in Japanese ears—but with MacArthur of the Rainbow.

In both roles, he is a famous soldier bound by no hampering military traditions, a disciple of swift aggressive action in battle, schooled to seize every opportunity to hit first.

Bataan was but the logical sequel for MacArthur to the second Marne and Sedan, the capstone of the arch of experience and military indoctrination that prepared him for the great job now at hand be it defense or offense. It taught him the science of strategic retreat in a hard school as he had learned and practiced the art of swift advance amid the blood and mud in France. Both will serve him well now with a continent to have and to hold instead of a tiny sea-girt, jungle-crown headland 20 miles wide by 30 miles long.

Yet the battle of Luzon which has written Bataan peninsula and its gallant American and Filipino defenders into history and has stirred admiration of the world, the grudging respect even of the foe, offers a background against which to conjecture the probable nature and strategy of the battle of Australia if it comes.

But what if Japan has reached the present limit of her expansion south and eastward? What if she turns westward against India or northward against Russia as her Nazi overlord desires? What if she halts to consolidate the still tenuous axis grip fastened on China sea archipelagos? In that case, MacArthur's role will be different.

It will be his mission to groom in Australia the allied land forces to follow up and make good an American sea-air offensive pointed at Japan itself and at her long and precarious China sea communication lines.

Assured of secure Pacific supply lines to multiply his own forces and battle equipment, no task could better suit a soldier. To MacArthur, deeply touched with a proven genius for war-making, and prepared by a life time of study and practice in that grimest art, it would be the fruition of his dreams.

He has known for almost a month what fate held in store for him as supreme commander in Australia. Being what he is, there can be no doubt that he already has shaped up in his mind the broad pattern of what he hopes to do and how he hopes to do it in conformity with the directives of the higher command under United Nations global-war strategy.

Douglas MacArthur is that kind of a soldier, a thinking as well as an acting captain. As chief of staff of the Rainbow division in France, sensing a wide German retreat in progress from the Marne, he lifted Rainbow front echelons out of objectives just taken to continue the advance—without losing valuable time in communicating with the division commander for authorization. Pershing made MacArthur a brigade commander for that, instead of court martialing him. And only weeks later at Sedan command of the division had passed to him in further recognition of his abilities.

At the armistice he held the division poised near Sedan to be the cutting edge of the most spectacular Franco-American thrust of the campaign, the planned encirclement of the German Metz-Thionville "gnother strongpoint." That natural bastion had been pointed like a dagger at the heart of France for years. Only the German collapse in 1918 prevented MacArthur and his Rainbow troops from sharing in its certain reduction by force.

At present, however, and until Japanese purposes against Australia are clear, MacArthur and the Australian-American armies and such other British or Dutch elements as have rallied there must be concerned with defensive strategy. They have a continent as huge as the United States to hold.

No accepted plan of its defense, tested by years of progressive maneuver problems, is available as was the case of Luzon. Strategy must be improvised and conditioned on the forces now available or soon to arrive from the United States as well as upon a reasoned pre-judgement of where and how an invasion attempt will be made.

Yet hand-to-hand experience with Japanese methods on Luzon, affording an accurate estimate of enemy fighting capacities, will be invaluable to the allied commander. He knows already both the strong points of Japanese army technique and its weaknesses. He also has had opportunity to try out on a small scale in his masterly handling of the retreat to Bataan under fire, theories he may now be called upon to put in practice in a battle of continental dimensions.

Neither official war department progress bulletins from Washington at the time or the later unofficial expansions by new writers who shared in the grim and fast moving business serve fully to reveal the pattern of the retreat to Bataan. The peninsula had been viewed for 40 years of American occupation as the place of final refuge until help could come from across the Pacific. It figured in American alternatives in certain eventualities as far back as 1898, before Manila fell. Had the single remaining Spanish battleship, once headed for the Philippines, come to outmatch Dewey's fleet, American troops besieging Manila would have been withdrawn to Bataan to await the coming of American battleships from Cuba.

When Japan lashed out by air and sea to seize Luzon, it fell to MacArthur's lot to dust off those old plans and give them modern application. A power invasion from the northwest and the southeast simultaneously confronted him. He met his emergency squarely and without delay, gauging accurately the overpowering size of opposing forces and making immediately the grave decision to fall back into Bataan while there was time, even at the cost of surrendering Manila undefended.

That prompt decision probably rates MacArthur even higher as a military leader than the defense of Bataan which followed. It was a tremendous responsibility, yet he shouldered it unhesitatingly. Behind the screen of his light forces, even when quickly deprived of adequate air support for either battle or scouting purposes, he got not only the main body of his troops but virtually all his mobile guns and ammunition and stores of food and other supplies into the Bataan refuge. Japanese claims of army equipment captured in Manila only emphasized the meager remnant left behind in that brilliantly conceived and executed withdrawal.

Against what could happen in Australia, that is illuminating. It seems unquestionable that MacArthur must have exacted, as the price of his assumption of supreme command there, binding agreements with dominion authorities that his word shall be final in determining where to fight and where to run. That is the first requisite of command in the field.

On Luzon MacArthur did not hesitate to give up Manila to obtain a greater end. In Australia he will not hesitate to give ground as need as he did on Luzon, to keep his armies and communications intact and effective. That is one military axiom no modern war development has outmoded. It will dominate MacArthur's handling of the larger problem in Australia as it did the smaller on Luzon.

POLITICAL INTEREST IN MID-WEST LAGS

Topics Not Connected with War Find Little Favor.

By The Associated Press

Politics is playing second fiddle to the war this year in the middle west.

A study of eight states in the middle of the country—Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota—shows an unusual lack of public interest in politics or in any issue not associated with winning the war.

The survey indicates farmers are too busy in the fields to listen to campaign speeches. They appear to be satisfield with the rising level of farm prices and do not seem to have united behind any one political movement.

In Michigan, Minnesota and South Dakota, the reports showed, voters may take time out to spank those congressmen who tried to vote themselves pensions.

The consensus of political observers throughout was that the present ratio of Republicans and Democrats in congress (roughly two to one) would be maintained for another two years.

Incumbents generally were favored in Illinois and Ohio. The GOP was believed to be assured of victories in Minnesota, North and South Dakota.

War has dumped several unknown factors into the midwest's political arithmetic. Many war workers have flocked into some states. As yet the politicians do not know how these are going to vote.

In Ohio, a subnormal vote was expected, with incumbents generally favored to back in. Ohio has lost voters to the army and many migrating workers have not established voting rights.

SOMERSET CROWNED NEW STATE CLASS B CAGE CHAMP

Perry County Again Claimant to Ohio Title; Four Class A Teams Head for Kent Event Saturday.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 23—Somerset's towering Raiders held Ohio's Class B High school basketball championship today after one of the most surprising tournaments in history, while Akron North, Canton Lehman, Toledo Central Catholic and Xenia Central battle next Saturday at Kent for the Class A crown.

Somerset's conquest over 901 other Class B quintets took the title to Perry county's hill country for the second straight year, the new kings residing just six miles south on Route 757 from Glenford, home of the 1941 champions who failed to survive the county elimination this year.

The unbelievable Raiders, who finished fourth in the county league during the regular season as a result of six defeats, entered the state tournament with the third poorest record among the 16 qualifiers. They bowled over Tipp City 38 to 19, Webster Township of Wood county by 37 to 24, Waynesburg by 44 to 26, and then wrecked Bremen's 26-game winning spree by 49 to 42 in the finals.

The four victims of the Raiders won 99 while losing only five games this year, but the Perry countians who hit the tourney with 22 wins and six defeats won convincingly over the entire quartet.

No records were smashed as the Class B contingent battled through the three-day classic at Springfield. Dave Thompson, Otsego Hills five-foot seven-inch center, came up with the high single game count of 21 points and top high average of 17 per game for two starts, but Bremen's little red-haired shooting star, Hughie Jones, led the scorers with 52 for four contests. Stanley (Ike) Lupier, Somerset's sterling center, taking second with 41. Somerset scored 168 while allowing 111 for the best offense and tightest defense in the tourney.

Jones and Russ Gratz of Bluffton were named all-tourney forwards, the center position went to Dupler, and Chuck Hatfield of Waynesburg and Bob Starkey of Somerset copped the guard positions.

Toledo Central faces a chance to make history in this week's Class A finals at Kent. No Catholic team ever having copped the big school championship. The Toledo school breezed into the finals Saturday night by beating a tough Mansfield squad 36 to 34; Akron North eliminated Cambridge 47 to 37; Canton Lehman was a surprise 42-37 winner over Warren Harding, and Xenia Central defeated Dayton Roosevelt 31 to 23.

Ohio Class D Loop Prexy Refers to Marion as Location.

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., March 23 — With Mansfield definitely out, the Ohio State Baseball league will play the 1942 season with only four teams, unless Marion comes in, loop President Joe Donnelly said today.

Donnelly said the Mansfielders were considered definitely out of the picture when their representatives failed to attend yesterday's meeting, the third straight session at which the Braves have been absent. Nothing definite has been heard from Marion, he added.

Unless a replacement for Mansfield is obtained, one of the other five clubs will be dropped, although no decision will be made for at least a week, Donnelly reported.

The league prexy said he would confer today with owners of the Findlay team concerning negotiations for purchase of the club by Toledo interests.

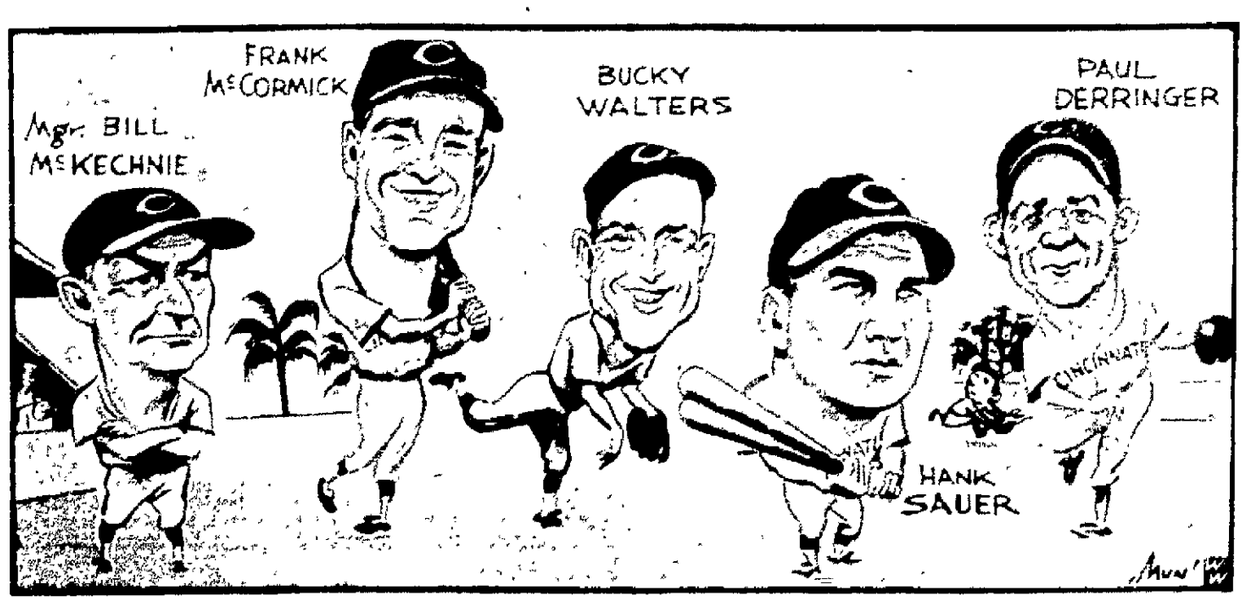
Pitching Gives McKechnie Ideas About Flag



By DILLON GRAHAM
Wide World Writer

TAMPA, Fla.—Good pitching, says Deacon Will McKechnie of the Reds, will stop good hitting. And that's why McKechnie, who has the best pitching corps in the majors, believes Cincinnati may win the National league flag this year.

"The race should be a dogfight between the Dodgers, Cardinals and Reds," he says, "but I think we've got a good chance."

Sizing up the strong points of those teams, the Dodgers have the hitting, the Cardinals have the speed and the Reds have the pitching.

"You know," Bill says, "We gave these clubs a good run last year. And if we hadn't gotten off to such a poor start we would have won. You remember we lost something like 20 of our first 28 games. At that, when we hit that long winning streak in August I thought we'd probably overhaul them. But we couldn't keep it up. We just didn't quite have it.

"Yes sir, someone figured that if we had gotten 17 singles at the right spots we would have beaten the Dodgers. We were only 11 games behind with the worst hitting you ever heard of. Imagine a major league club hitting 230. Gosh, we were awful, nobody hitting, and we were still right up in the race.

Hitting Perks Up

"Things can't be that bad this year. Frank McCormick is too good a hitter to bat way below .300 again. Bert Haas, the youngster I've got at third base, is a good batter and should help up. Eddie Joost is hitting the ball swell this spring and I expect Mike McCormick and Goodman to do better. This big Hank Sauer, the kid I'm trying in left field, is a distance slugger and if he sticks his power should help carry us.

"And last year Derringer was hurt for the first couple of months and Gene Thompson, the youngster who was a ball of fire in 1940, couldn't win. Paul is in top shape now and Thompson, since he had his tonsils out, should be a winner. We'll get some victories out of Ray Starr, too. He's that veteran minor leaguer from Indianapolis. He won 20 down there."

McKechnie is planning on using Mike McCormick, Ival Goodman and the rookie Sauer in the outfield. If Sauer doesn't measure up Harry Craft, Lenie Koy and Jim Gleeson are available.

Big Ernie Lombardi, long a fixture with the Reds, has gone to the Braves but Cincinnati's receiving should be okey with Rollie Hemsley, from Cleveland; Dick West and Ray Lamanno. Lamanno, with Birmingham a year ago, has been one of the sensations of the spring drills.

One Infield Newcomer

Haas is the only newcomer to the infield. McCormick will be at first, Lonnie Frey at second and Eddie Joost at shortstop. Bobby Mattick will be around for reserve duty and Chuck Aleno rates as a pretty fair third baseman if Haas doesn't go well.

This may be the big year for Johnny Vander Meer, the double no-hit kid. The veterans, Derringer and Bucky Walters, and Elmer Riddle, the league's top earned-run and percentage pitcher in 1941, make up the Big-4. Then there's Ray Starr, Whitey Moore, Gene Thompson, Joe Beggs and Monte Pearson.

Most managers spend twice as much time worrying about their pitchers as they do over all the rest of the ball club combined but McKechnie is the one skipper who rarely has to give a thought to the hurlers. He's got 'em, and to spare.

If Frank McCormick climbs back into stride, if Sauer goes well and if the rest of the gang, who must have touched bottom last year, improve even just a trifle, the Reds may have the power they need to go with that great pitching for a pennant-winning outfit.

Rockets Play West Virginia Team in New York Tonight

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23—Madison Square Garden's national invitation basketball tournament, which already has produced a trio of upsets and three new scoring records, comes up to the semi-finals tonight with a lineup unlike the one the sponsors planned when they passed out the bids.

Toledo university, the only team left from among the four top-seeded quintets in the original field of eight, clashes with West Virginia in the opener tonight and Creighton university tangles with Western Kentucky in the afterpiece.

Of the seeded quintets only Toledo ran true to form. The Rockets broke every Garden scoring record in out-shooting high-geared Rhode Island State, 81-71. Center Bob Gerber, the Toledo ace, scorched the net for 17 field goals and three free tosses, a total of 37 points which wiped out all previous individual marks in the eighth avenue sports palace, tournament or otherwise. The Toledo score and its total of 36 field goals also were new records.

SEEDING PLAN ADOPTED

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 23—Strong teams will be seeded in future district, regional and state scholastic basketball tournaments instead of determining pairings by lot, H. R. Townsend, state high school athletic commissioner, said at the Class B meet here. He explained that seeding would prevent early-round games between favorites.

Iowa Naval Team To Play Buckeyes; Consider Ft. Knox

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 23—Football teams from the Naval Aviation Cadet Training Center at Iowa City, Ia., and the army post at Fort Knox, Ky., received an unofficial nod today as the most likely service elevens to play Ohio State university here this fall.

L. W. St. John, Buckeye athletic director, indicated the naval cadet team coached by Bernie Bierman, former Minnesota mentor, was virtually assured as an opponent, although negotiations are incomplete. A game with Fort Knox is likely, he added.

St. John explained that Western Conference director at their March 6-7 meetings in Chicago agreed to permit Big Ten grid teams to play two games with service elevens.

He disclosed that Camp Shelby and Great Lakes Naval Training station teams had been considered but that neither would be signed because of distances involved or full schedules already completed.

Both of Ohio State's games with service teams will be played in Columbus with part of the proceeds going to service organizations, St. John said.

Galion Assistants Promoted to Rank of Head Coaches

James Lymper and Robert Sheffer Named To Fill Vacancy Created by Mackey's Resignation.

Special to The Star

GALION, March 23—A coaching vacancy created recently by the resignation of Clarence Mackey as head coach and athletic director at Galion High school was filled Saturday afternoon in a special meeting of the board of education.

Supt. M. A. Povenmire announced following the meeting that James Lymper had been named football and baseball coach and Robert Sheffer made head basketball coach. The office of Athletic director was disregarded for the present time.

Superintendent Povenmire revealed that a third man would be hired later in the spring to act as an assistant coach to Sheffer and Lymper.

Both Lymper and Sheffer have served on the Galion coaching staff for one year, Lymper coming here from Versailles and Sheffer from Tipp City.

Lymper graduated from the University of Illinois in 1930 after being named for three straight years to the all Big Ten baseball team as a third baseman. He served as captain of the Illini nine in 1930. That year he stole 21 bases, 11 of which were across home plate, for a record which still stands in the Western Conference. He was also a member of the Illinois baseball team which toured Japan in 1928.

For three years from 1931 through 1932 Lymper was affiliated with the St. Louis Cardinals. In the fall of 1934 he scouted for Bob Zuppke, former Illinois mentor coach. The next year he served as freshman football and baseball coach at Ohio State.

Following a year at Arcadia High school he became head coach at Versailles, Ohio, where he remained for five years. In four years his football teams ran up 28 wins in 42 starts and won an even 100 basketball games while dropping only four.

Both Lymper and Sheffer have been assistants to head Coach Mackey in addition to holding teaching positions.

Sheffer received his bachelor of science degree from Bowling Green college and has done graduate work at Ohio State. While at Bowling Green he won letters in football, basketball and baseball.

He coached at Rockford for two years, winning the county league title in 1933. In 1937 he became coach at Perrysburg and that year his team won the Northwestern Ohio tournament, gaining a place among the 16 state Class B qualifiers. In nine years of coaching he has won 102 games as compared to 34 losses.

MANY STEEL USERS TURNING TO WOOD

Magazine Reports Metal Held for High Priorities.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 23—With most steel production limited to high preference war needs many former uses are being replaced by wood as the only means of supplying the deficiency, the magazine "Steel" said today.

"Increasingly water tanks are being redesigned for timber construction and even rated war projects where wood can be used are being changed to that material to save steel for actual war requirements, as well as to speed completion," the report added.

"By far the greater part of steel orders on books is concentrated in upper priority brackets, shipments on ratings below A-1-D being slowed up and mills as a rule accepting no commitments lower than A-1-J.

"Plates are in most demand but the situation has been bettered in recent weeks and most essential needs are being met closer to schedule. Much relief is being afforded as pipes from skelp mills come out in large tonnage.

"Part of the iron ore fleet left lower ports last week, the earliest in history, and the Lakes are opening channels to Escanaba and Lake Superior ports, in an effort to start ore movement."

HENRY W. JOHNSON IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Former Pleasant Twp. Official Stricken; Rites Tuesday.

Henry W. Johnson, 83, retired Marion county farmer and Pleasant township official and the father of County Engineer Walter W. Johnson of 244 Superior street, died yesterday at 1 a. m. in the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Geyer of three miles south of Marion on the Prospect road. His health had been failing for three months.

Mr. Johnson retired from farming about 15 years ago. Prior to that time he served on the Pleasant township school board at several different times and was the Pleasant township trustee for several two-year terms.

A native of Hardin county, Mr. Johnson spent most of his life in Marion county. He was born on March 12, 1859, son of Martin and Rosamond Farnum Johnson. His mother was born in Marion county. He was married on May 8, 1888 to Miss Emma Amelia Hoch, who preceded him in death on June 26, 1940.

Mr. Johnson was a member of Emanuel Lutheran church.

Surviving are the son, three daughters, Mrs. Geyer, Mrs. Harley Seiter of near Marion and Mrs. Fred Fetter of Mexral, 12 grandchildren including Private Robert H. Goyer who is in Hawaii, five great-grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Clara Berry of Byhalia and a brother, J. B. Johnson of East Liberty.

The funeral will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p. m. in Emanuel Lutheran church by Rev. M. E. Hollensen. Burial will be made in Marion cemetery. Friends may call at the Geyer home until 10 a. m. Tuesday and at the church after 11.

LABOR

produce as it should, then public indignation will sweep both management and labor aside and insist that rigid governmental controls be set up—"controls which we might find it difficult to remove after the war."

"Our job is to win this war as fast as we can, without being held up either by a few selfish employers who are over-anxious about protecting their profits or position or by a few blind labor leaders who put personal partisan ambition above the common good and preach a false isolationism."

Senator Herring (D-Iowa) has threatened openly to move to discharge the labor committee, headed by Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) from consideration of a bill Herring introduced last year calling for a complete overhauling of labor policies to prevent war industry strikes. Herring said he intended to amend the measure to deal with pressing problems that since have developed.

At the same time, Senator Lee (D-Okla.) who has been urging the senate to act to repeal the 40-hour work week law, said he would support any motion that might be made by Herring or others interested in the move to force senate action.

Lee, who reported receipt of 20,000 letters on the subject in three days last week, said the public was demanding that congress repeal the 40-hour law, outlaw strikes, and prevent "racketeering" through the collection of excessive union dues before workers could obtain jobs in war industries.

Contrary to assertions by labor leaders that much of the public protest had been generated by organized campaigns, Lee told reporters the vast majority of his letters were from ordinary citizens who apparently were expressing their own views.

Lee said there was no doubt that the public had been disturbed by editorials in newspapers and by the printing of tear-out pledges to vote against congress members who failed to support repeal of the 40-hour week and legislation to halt strikes.

A U. S. HERO—AND HERS TOO

Mrs. Richard Carmichael, of Olean, N. Y., is justly proud of her flying husband, whose picture she holds. For Major Carmichael commanded the squadron of eight U. The next day they returned and blasted a Jap aerodrome at Salamaua and knocked down five enemy planes.

U. S. EYES

tralia, Western Australia and the island of Tasmania, plus the Northern Territory and the Canberra Capital Territory.

Studded in relief, the continent as a whole spreads itself "thin," in vast plains and plateaus. Its important mountain ranges are found only along the east coast and resemble the moderate Appalachian mountains of eastern United States. With its rolling grasslands, low brush and open spaces, Australia offers little natural obstruction to overland invasion.

A striking feature of the transportation system which may play a part in the present emergency is that many of the railway lines extending inland from the coast come to an abrupt end. Also, between one line and another, there is often a difference of gauge, a handicap to transcontinental service which resulted from independent development of Australia's various colonies.

The continent's transport lines are thickest in the southeast, following population grouping. Continental air service links the coasts and an east-west railway runs across the southern portion of the nation; but there is no completed north-south rail communication. The north-south line which was pushed inland from Darwin during the late 1800's eventually stretched for about 300 miles, leaving a break in steel to the heart of the country. This gap was filled by a defense highway within the last two years.

THE economic life of peacetime Australia is a clear example of the influence of climate and terrain. With more rainfall, the continent's vast level stretches and mild seasons could have provided the foundation for one of the world's richest farm areas. As it is, Australia's arid and semi-arid conditions (more than a third of it is desert) limited the development of varied crops, and encouraged sheep and cattle raising, as well as large scale grain production on huge, scattered ranches.

Even in these enterprises, occasional devastating drouths have wreaked havoc, although modern projects for conservation and irrigation are minimizing these dangers.

Australia raised more than 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in 1939-40, plus less extensive but sizeable output in barley, oats, corn, and hay. It is estimated that there are about 16 sheep and two cattle for each human inhabitant of the country. Wool production in one recent pre-war year amounted to over a billion pounds. Meat exports amounted to about 38 million dollars in 1938-39; butter exports totaled about 41 million dollars.

Development of refrigeration wrote a new chapter in Australian export annals, making dairy products and mutton and beef practical commodities for distant markets. Galion School Children Will Be Fingerprinted

Special to The Star

GALION, March 23—As a part of the national defense effort the program for finger printing the school children here starts at the North school. The prints will be sent to Washington to be used for civilian identification purposes.

Merle Gow local police officer who is in charge of the work, said today such prints are of inestimable value not only in a time of national emergency, but also in case of accident, amnesia victims and disappearances. He noted that in England today all men, women and children have been fingerprinted by the government.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Although Gus Is Anxious for Madge's Safety, She Takes the Responsibility and Orders Speed

"PLEASE, Miss Graham," Gus entreated, "don't tell him that! You don't know what a dear driver he is. And I told your father it'd be impossible for me."

He had difficulty in getting the words out, for the driver pursuit by was doing his level best to live up to the reputation Gus gave him.

The big armored car sped along the narrow winding road as if it were a light racer, and I found myself digging my fingers into the cushions and bracing my feet and back, in an effort to keep myself reasonably erect.

"You see," Gus nodded his head vigorously toward the driver, as he put this last argument. But I smiled disarmingly and spoke quickly, and I hoped loudly enough to reach the driver's ears.

Madge Praises Driver

"I see that he's doing a marvelous job of driving," I said. "And that's what I need. I simply must get to Warren and find out the best way to get to Thunder Mountain, before the people in that other car have a chance to get there. And again I tell you, Gus, that I will take the full responsibility for this. I will tell my father when I see him again how hard you tried to keep the speed down, and how I overruled you."

"Okay," Gus answered, but in a mournful tone which so strongly implied a doubt that I ever would see my father again, that I could hardly keep my nibbles in order.

I saw Bill lean toward the driver and knew he was listening to some order or suggestion, although I could not hear a word. But the next second Bill turned back to us.

The Sky the Limit

"Joe says we're almost through this road now. He's slowing up for this corner, where the cars come up the other way, and he'll have to cut it down a bit for the bridge, too, and a couple of blocks in New Milford. Then we'll be on Route 25, and all our troubles will be over. You see, he has a card in his pocket your father gave him, that will fix things with any traffic cop, and he says to tell you the sky will be the limit."

I saw Gus wince, and knew the faithful fellow was torn with fear, not for himself, for he is as brave and reckless of danger as any other of my father's men, but for my safety, because that had been entrusted to him by the "Chief."

There was nothing more I could do to reassure him, however. All my mental power was fused into the desire to get to Professor Diswell's home ahead of the other speeding armored car. But I knew that the driver, through Bill, was waiting for an answer from me, and I gave it.

"That is wonderful news," I said, and I saw Bill relay my words to the driver.

Slowed by the Traffic

"There's more traffic here than there is in New York," Gus growled, as we were next through several blocks crowded with morning or noon-hours. Then, after turning a corner, we emerged on a broad concrete road marked 25, and Gus heaved a sigh of relief.

"At least we'll get a chance for our whole shot now," he said. Nobody spoke again until several miles farther on.

"We'll have to back up a bit through here," Bill said apologetically. "It's the village of New Preston, and there ain't much room. But in just a minute or two he can let her out again."

"Anything he does is all right with me," I told Bill.

"Okay," he said. "We'll get there a good bit ahead."

No Time for Beauty

All the beauty-lover in me longed to ask him to slow down, for New Preston, with its old houses strung along a narrow, winding road, dipping to a mountain stream with a sizable waterfall on one side and skirting a mountain on the other, was one of the most picturesque old hamlets—more Old England than New—that I ever had seen.

But we were out of it and skirting the shore of a beautiful mountain lake, framed in the first tender green of the spring, before I had a chance to speak, even if I had been so weak as to yield to my inclination.

"That's Lake Waramaug," Bill informed us, "and we'll be in Warren in less than ten minutes."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D

Oleo

At the present time, with living costs going up and rationing of food products, the use of less expensive food substitutes is a subject of natural interest. Several inquiries have come to this desk regarding oleomargarine as a substitute for butter.

It can be said with the greatest amount of assurance that oleomargarine, for nutritional purposes, is just as valuable as butter. On September 8, the Federal Food and Drug Administration placed into effect a standard for oleomargarine, known as margarine, under which it may be enriched with 9,000 units of Vitamin A and Vitamin D also may be added.

This margarine is 80% fat and 97% digestible. The calorie or energy yield of this food product is about 3300 calories per pound.

It is made of selected, wholesome oils and fats, such as cottonseed oil, soybean oil, corn oil, peanut oil and beef fats and oils. One or more of these, blended with pasteurized skimmed milk and salted and ripened so as to develop a palatable flavor, constitutes modern margarine.

Its taste is now improved so that old prejudices against it in favor of butter hardly apply.

More Economical

It is more economical than butter and achieves this economy from the fact that the various oils and fats used in its manufacture can be obtained at low cost due to their natural abundance. In addition to this, modern scientific methods of manufacturing help to preserve these economies for the consumer.

The original name "oleomargarine" was used because it was made exclusively from oils from meat fats known at that time as "oleo oils," but the modern product is properly called margarine and is a great improvement on the original.

There is some popular objection to the fact that margarine is not colored. The Federal law required that a tax of ten cents per pound be put on the colored margarine. Many states prohibit the sale of colored margarine. Margarine may be colored after it is purchased by being allowed to soften slightly to room temperature, and most manufacturers supply coloring materials that can be added by the housewife, which is quite legal.

Margarine is satisfactory to use both on the table and in the kitchen as a spread, as a shortening, as a frying fat and as a seasoning.

I don't suppose it will ever be as popular as butter, but if for patriotic reasons you have to use it, you may do so without prejudice.
